

We're looking for a few good people...

The Richmond Poverty Response Committee (RPRC) was formed in the year 2000 in response to the Richmond Poverty Report Card, which identified a surprisingly high level of poverty in our community. This is an inclusive volunteer-run committee, with members from local agencies as well as individuals from the community – all working together towards our mandate of alleviating the effects of poverty in Richmond. All members are encouraged to participate at the level and interest that they have.

The RPRC meets monthly, 4:30pm, currently at Richmond Caring Place and enjoys a congenial social environment that enables service providers, partnering agencies and individuals from the community to work together with equal representation for the management of any projects.

Our agenda always includes an opportunity for members to discuss any gaps in services they have become aware of, which could spin off to a special project or new task force. Other regular agenda items include reports from our two very active task forces: the Food Security Task Force and the Affordable Housing Task Force, Richmond Cares, (a task force on year round giving which includes Richmond Shares web site) and Transportation (in the start-up stages).

This committee is proud of its successes, and has many ongoing and new projects that need your support. Whether you represent an agency in our community or are just concerned about these issues, your contribution to our group would be valued.

Consider attending a meeting; the Poverty Response Committee meets the first Thursday of the month at 4:30pm / Richmond Caring Place and gives a good overview of the work of all the groups.
